THE WELL, 1961

DEDICATION

We Seniors dedicate our yearbook, The Well
to our parents
in gratitude for the depth of love they have shown us, the height of their ideals which we have tried to reach, and the breadth of their understanding which we constantly realize.

166 DIRECTORIES

MOTHER QUINLAN

Dean of Studies

As the first class to take the Study of Western Culture, which Mother Quinlan introduced, we like to feel that we too had a hand in its initiation.

For we were the first who smiled brave, wan smiles and accepted the sympathy of the other classes. We were the first to demonstrate the benefits of the program by making a markedly improved showing in the regional exams. And, we add modestly, we were the first to call the new course "SWC."

But Mother Quinlan was the one who made the SWC idea a reality, who saw to its general plan and its tiniest details, who varied lectures and lecturers to make SWC as interesting as possible for us, and who gave us the encouragement we needed in quiet talks now and then.

We are very grateful, Mother Quinlan.

MOTHER HUSSON

President of the College

We have chosen to see ourselves here, not as painting, not as fresco or sketching, but as sculpture, a three-dimensional form of art. For we may call ourselves potential works of art: we are being molded to a beautiful design in the Eternal Artist's mind. We may also be said to have three dimensions, and at Newton these three are developed in us with proper proportion: we are given height in our intellectual life, depth in our spiritual life, and breadth in our social life.

This is why we came – to become, not one – or two – dimensional forms, but complete women– educated, Christian, outgoing. Because we are Catholic, the dimension of depth is the most important. At Newton our religion gives meaning to the other dimensions of college life; we worship God, but we learn also to know Him in the things we study and to find Him in the people we meet.

Our young minds are precious media, we are told, and so we have entrusted them to artists in a studio chosen with care. Newton and her faculty are well-equipped to help cast the design of the Master Artist. They know that the medium of a mind is not a passive one and must be allowed to help form itself. They know, too, that this formation cannot be completed in four short college years, and they inspire us to continue the molding process for the rest of our lives.

When does this process end for us? When will the Master's design be achieved? Ours is an eternal Master Artist, and His plans for us will not be complete until we are with Him in eternity.

FACULTY: THE ARTISTS

No Apple for the teacher?

Copy, cameras, publicity, pictures, deadlines, the press...Miss Murray.

Dr. Zephir, French Professor at the door of the Faculty Lounge.

"No, Quixote did not come from Acapulco." Madre Torres of the Spanish Department.

"Actually Sanskrit isn't too different once you get into it." Mr. Godfrey and Mr. Carello, instructors in Classic and Modern Languages.

"What Balalaika? Mrs. Kean, of the Russian Department.

French comes . . . petit à petit.
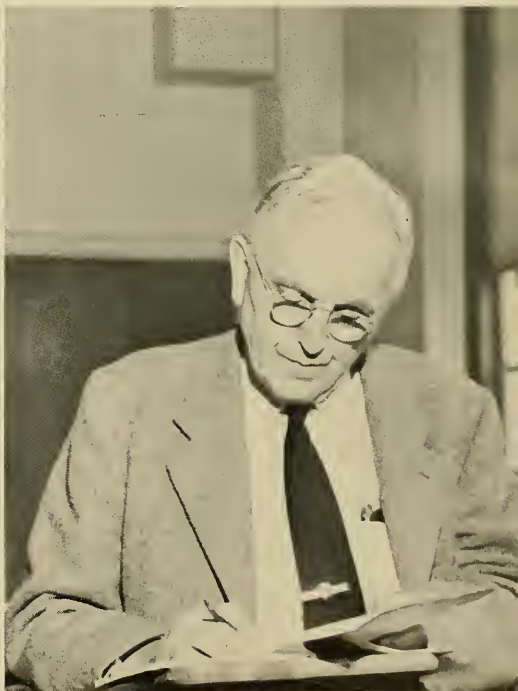
Mr. Wyeth of the French Department.



Mother Santen, Dean of Admissions

"To produce a mighty book, you must choose a mighty theme." Moby Dick, Ch. 104
Miss McNamara of the English Department

Mrs. Balling, of the Music Department

The Law and the Profits, and the prophet. Dr. Nemethy, Economics professor.

Mother Putnam and Mr. Marcus of the Art Department discuss plans for the next art exhibit.

Mr. Schwartz of the mathematics department arrives for class.

Mother Gorman of the psychology department.

"And how was your day?"
Mr. Wholey of the mathematics department and Dr. Powell of the sociology department.

"Do you think it's Pennicilium Notatum or Aspergilles Niger?"
Mother Cunningham of the Biology Department and Dr. Naves, chemistry professor.

"Now this may be a complicated experiment."
Mr. Pinciaro of chemistry department, Mrs. O'Brien and Mrs. Frawley of the biology department.

Two real Historians and An Age of Fiction.
Dr. Kerekes and Dr. McGovern

Mother McMullen, of the Political Science Department.

"Nearly everyone at Newton reads the Saturday Review, but first more blue books.
Mr. Connor, of the Economics Department.

For giving a record number of SWC lectures, Dr. Gleiman of the History Department has been dubbed "Dr. SWC". Here he is shown behind the lectern, using the Vu-graph to illustrate his talk for the freshman.

Margo Dineen conducts a Thursday afternoon student government meeting as the student body watches, attentively pensive.

Alo Coleman, parliamentarian; Brigid O'Sullivan, vice-president; and Joan Barry, day-hop representative.

Joyce Murray, secretary of student government, and Mary Loretto Dillon, treasurer, get together to type a report.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

Student Government helps mold our ideals:

SOCIAL COMMITTEE

Social Committee helps polish the planes and surfaces:

Left; a friendly smile and a welcoming hand, symbols of the spirit of Social Committee and its chairman, Nancy McAuliffe.

Invitations to those who make college life gayer are addressed by Julie Halleran, Ann O'Connor and Penny Whelan.

CLASS OFFICERS

The class officers at Newton open the door to self-government, better student-faculty relations, and high standards of behavior.

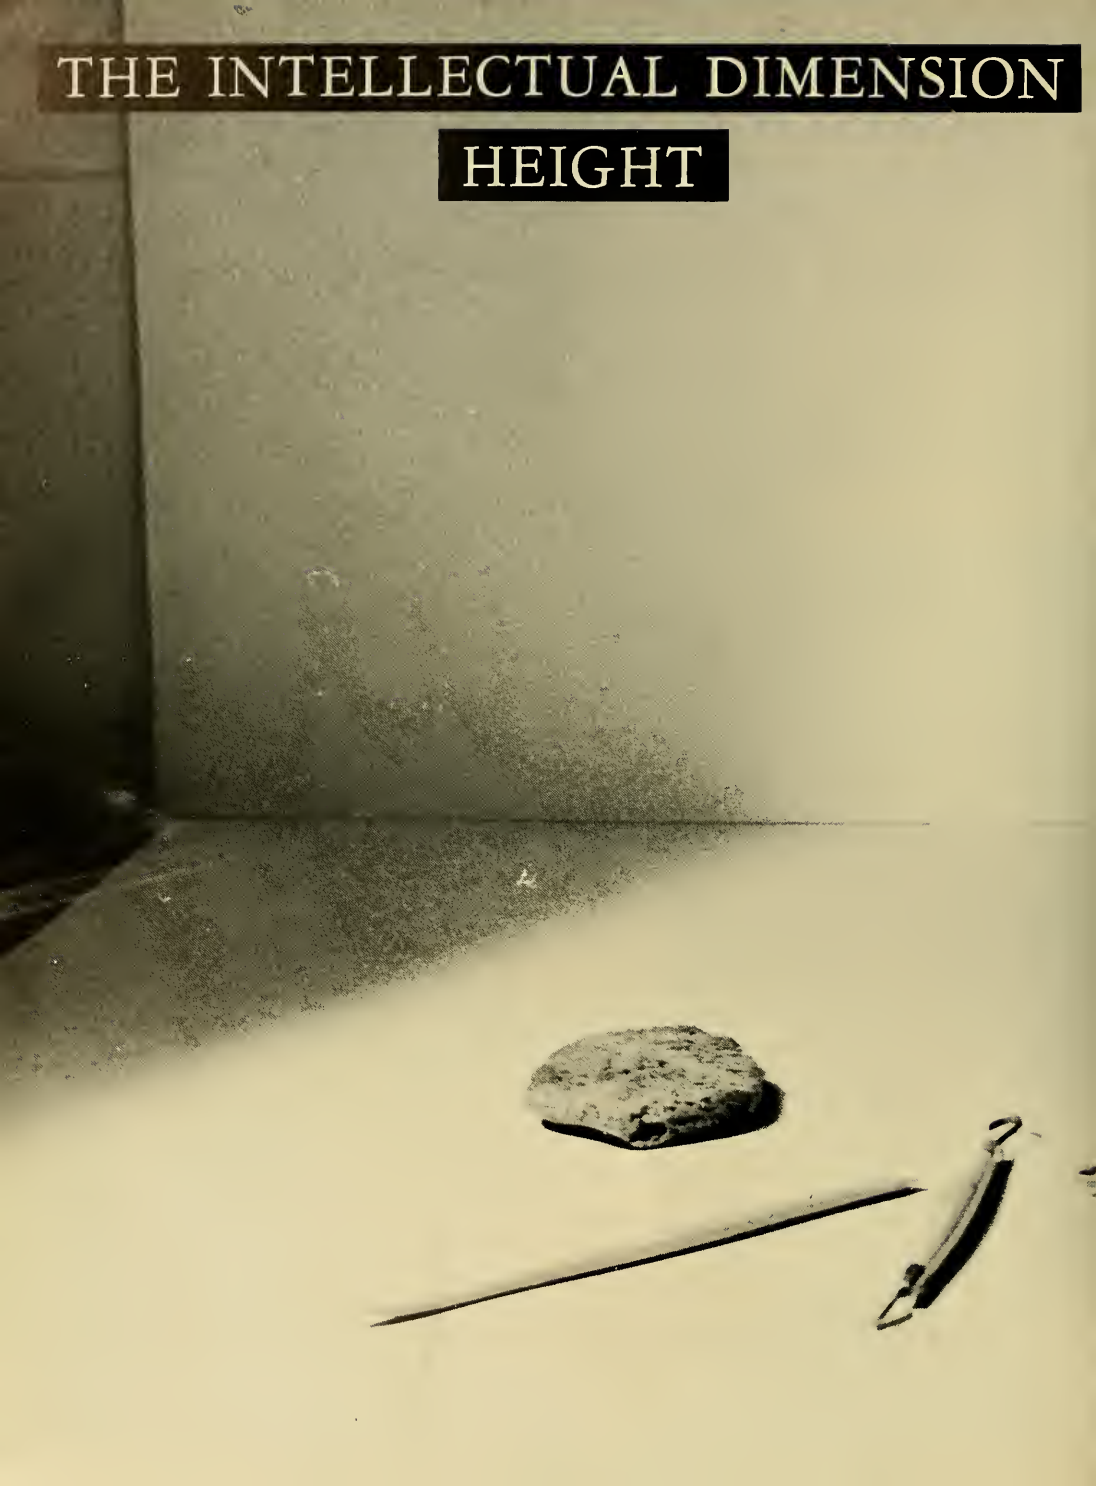
THE INTELLECTUAL DIMENSION

HEIGHT



INTELLECTUAL LIFE

Our studies at Newton add the dimension of height. Here, we are high in our aspirations, no longer content to have passive, goal-less, "high school" minds, but striving always for the discipline and direction which a college education can give. Here, our interest in our world is heightened: we find that, through the study of their histories and philosophies, many things which never interested us before begin to really "matter" to us. And here, our standards are high; we realize that we need to know "a little about a lot of things," but that we must also know one thing well.

How does Newton develop the intellectual dimension in us? She gives us a faculty adept at working with our young and somewhat plastic personalities. She gives us modern laboratories and classrooms, a sunny art studio, and piano practice rooms, and a well-equipped library with quiet corners in which to study. Her doors are open to guest lecturers and debaters, and her bulletin boards bristle with notices of student enterprises: panel discussions, debates, club meetings. She obtains for us special art displays and tape recordings, and she sends us out on field trips to learn by doing as well. Finally, Newton helps our intellects attain the intellectual heights we strive for by supplying the study atmosphere we need - by putting us in a "learning mood."

Left: Miss Norton, Registrar, is the one to see when baffled by the big black schedule board.

Right and below: Freshmen spend a lot of time in the general office during Orientation Week, talking over their electives and trying to catch a glimpse of their friends' schedule cards to see how they're filling them out.

Left: Jane Graham buys her first volume of the Summa in the bookstore under the guidance of Mother Cunningham who supplies us with the big and little things we need.

Left: Kathy Jacobi and Carol Singleton, delegates to the National Federation of Catholic College Students, posting a notice.

Left: Mary Loretto Dillon collects the "blanket tax." This covers the many extra-curricular interests which add to the intellectual life at Newton.

Left: Blanket tax and schedules planned, Sheila Powers and Tracy Mullee decide the activities which will round out their studies. Debating? Athletics? Dramatics?

The artist in his studio:

Left: Advisor to the President, liberal Arthur Schlesinger met with William Buckley, conservative editor of "The National Review" in a debate at Newton in January. Shown with the moderator, Thomas Mahoney of M.I.T., they discussed the topic, "Freedom and the Welfare State," before a crowd of 1200.

Above: After his lecture on Rouault, Mr. J. B. Neumann chats with Mother Putnam and the officers of the Art Club, Judy Brill, Judy Thompson (president), Beth Tierney, and Mary Bobay (vice president).

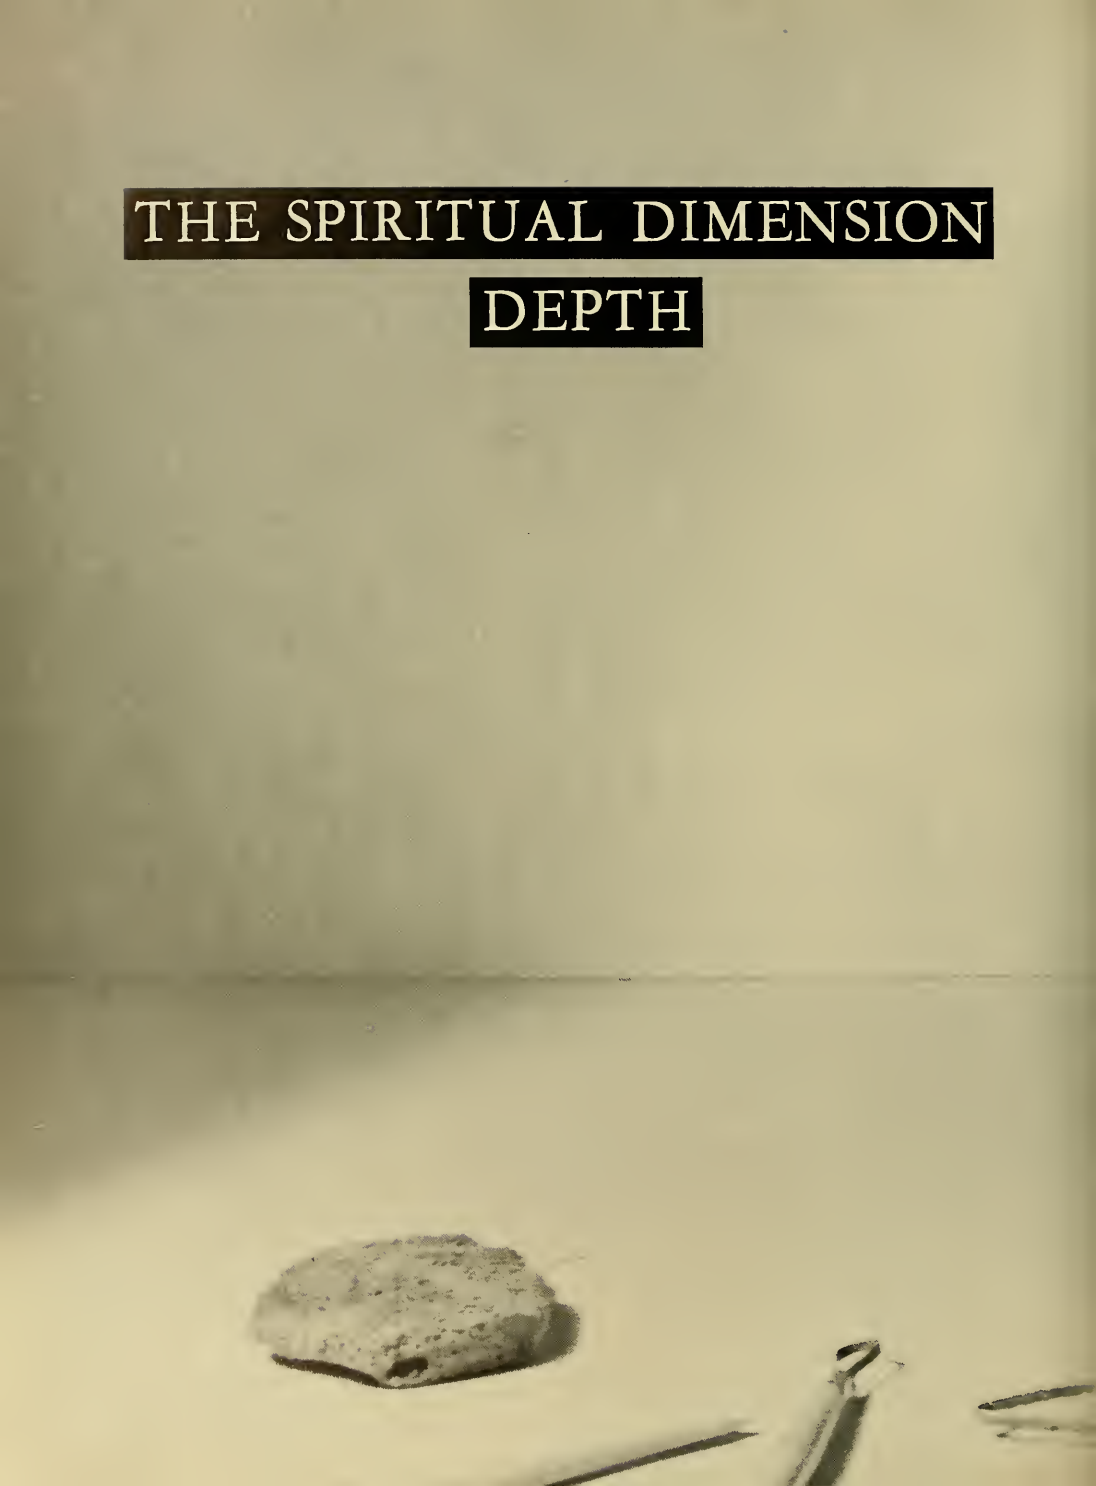
Above: Marlia Mundell, with paintbox and paper, sets out for an afternoon of sketching.

Right: Seniors, Sister Concetta Dalton, Sister Shawnleen Kennedy, and Sister Mary de Lourdes of the Marist Sisters in Framingham come up the steps of Stuart for their nine o'clock class.

The end of the day, but not of work:
Kay Bryant and Maureen Hannan return to the dorm to study – on a path paved with good intentions.

THE SPIRITUAL DIMENSION

DEPTH



SPIRITUAL LIFE

Although the world sometimes makes it easy for us to forget our religion, we are Catholic young women, and this fact makes all the difference. For us, the dimension of depth, given us by the spiritual life, is the most important, and we have come to a college which knows the value of this dimension. Our studies and social life here may benefit our minds and personalities, but we would be shallow, purposeless people, just barely scratching the surface of life, if we neglected the development of our souls.

One might say that Newton makes it easy to do the difficult thing. She makes it easy for us to get to Mass each day if we wish. She makes it easier to explain our religion, if we are called to do so, by explaining it to us in her theology courses. And she enables us to give of ourselves - to the missions, to the hospitals and child centers nearby – in organized, positive action. In a word, she gives us every opportunity to deepen in the Faith. And as in sculpture, depth is the dimension which makes the others "come to life," so at Newton, it is the spiritual life which gives meaning to our social and scholastic pursuits.

These two volumes of the Summa Theologica of Saint Thomas Aquinas take us through our four years at Newton, deepening our appreciation of the faith.

Barat House was the core of the early Newton campus and today it is the core of our spiritual life, for our chapel is here.

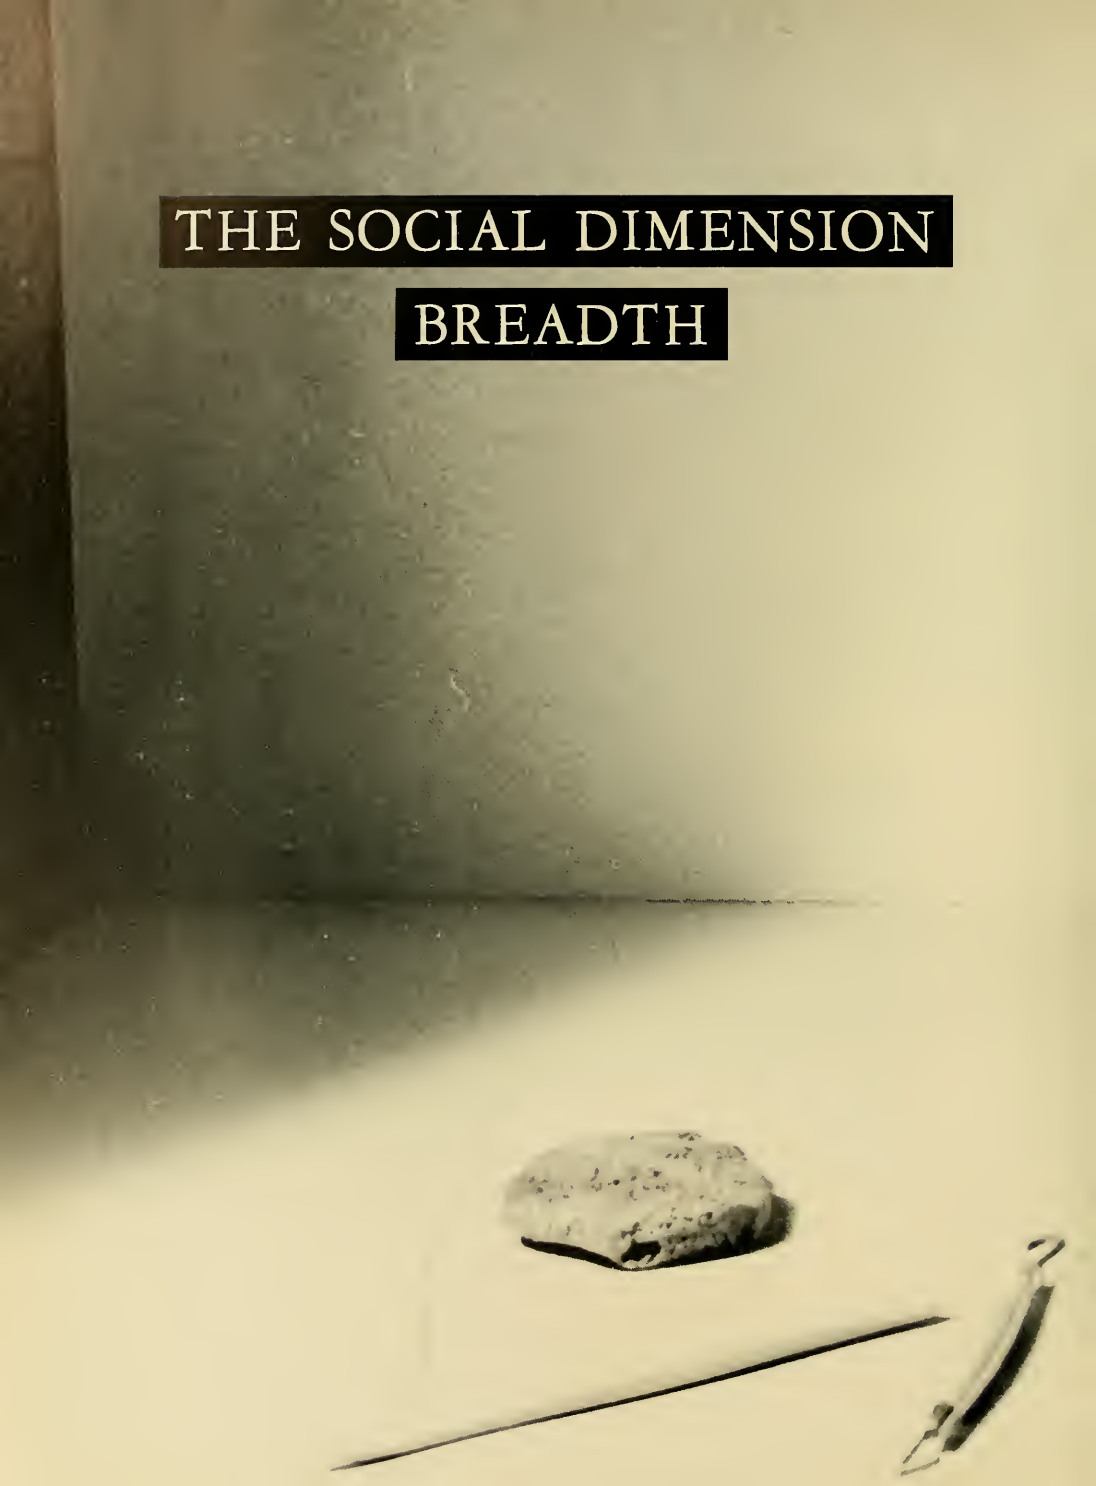
Our Deepest Moments

THE SOCIAL DIMENSION

BREADTH



In a college as ideally and strategically located as Newton, the dimension of breadth is perhaps the most easily developed. We are twenty cents away by subway and twenty minutes away by car from one of the cultural centers of America. Boston's lecture and concert halls, theatres and museums invite us to widen our interests and broaden our views - often at student rates of admission. In on-campus activities, too, we can try our hand at painting, singing, debating, acting, and, if we like, at envelope-addressing, punch-pouring, and crepe-paper-hanging. Working together on these projects, we cannot help widening our circle of friends. And we are not over depressed by the number of men's colleges nearby; boys can also be very broadening.

This wide range of opportunity is sometimes overwhelming, and it is a lesson in maturity to participate in extra-curricular activity and still cultivate the homely virtue of Putting First Things First.

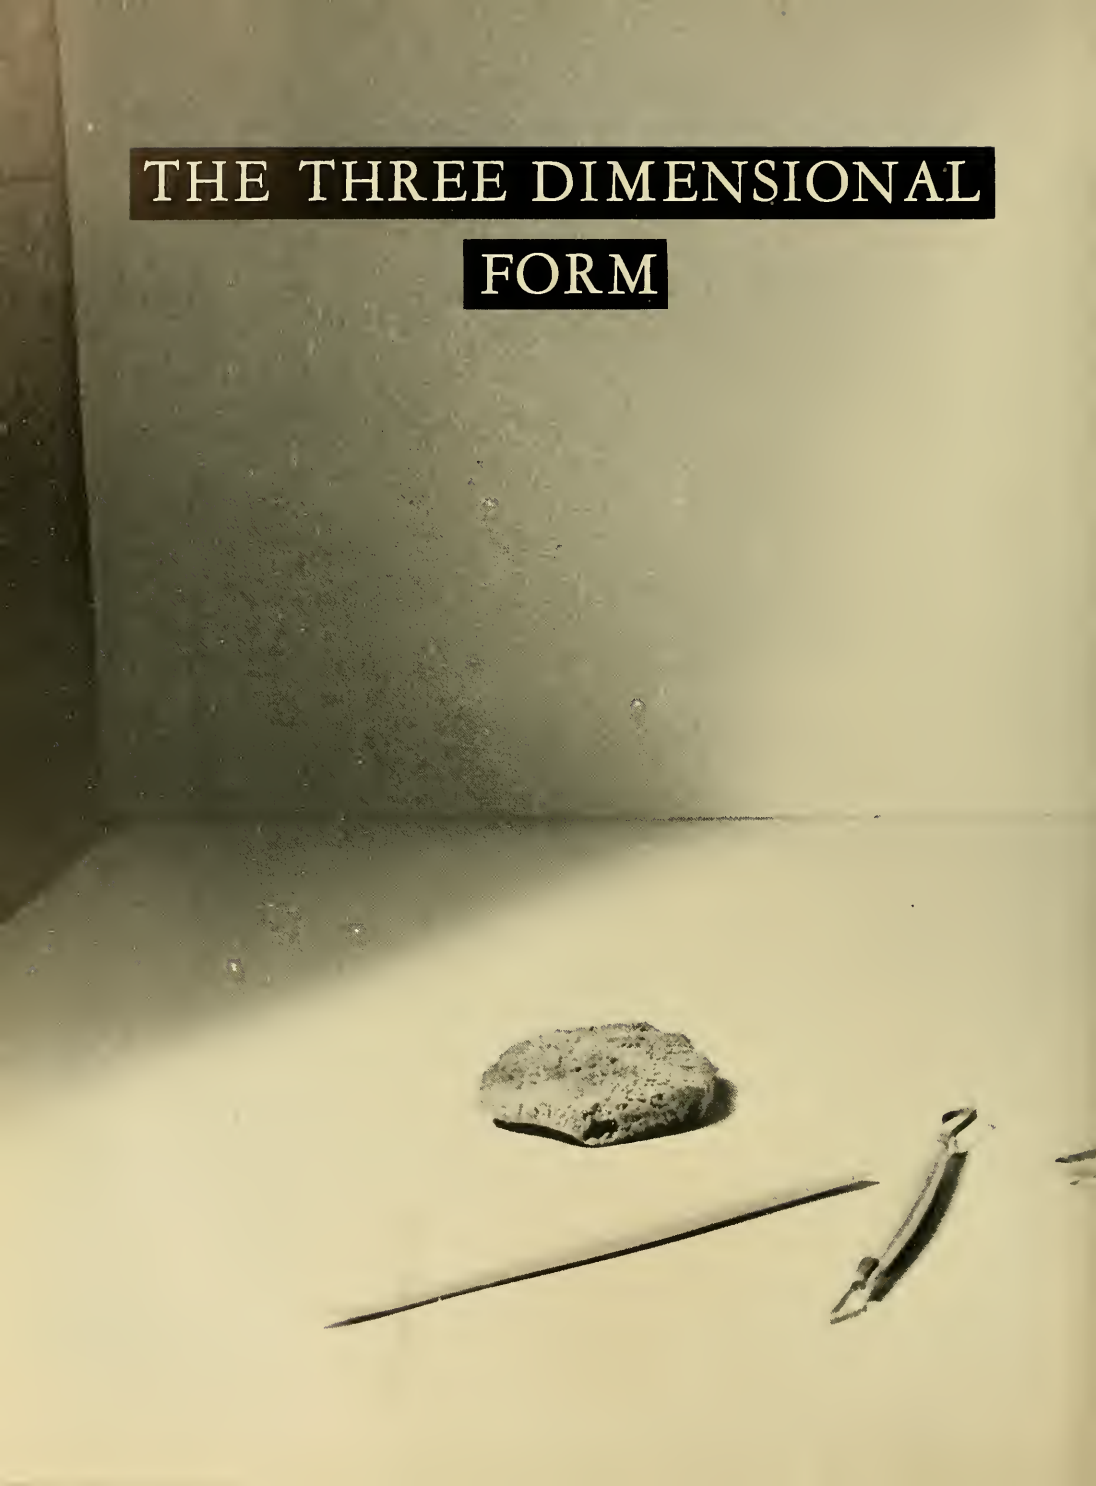
Well-wishers Ann Kennedy, Marie Aubois and their escorts cross their fingers and toss a coin.

THE THREE DIMENSIONAL FORM



We seniors will graduate this June, then, more "three-dimensional" women than we were when we came to Newton four Septembers ago. But we are not the finished product, not the completed sculpture ready for a pedestal. Our intellectual, social and spiritual dimensions will continue to develop. We will strive for greater clarity of design, for a finer polish, and for the spiritual quality found only in great works of art.

"...to dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life."

DAVID SAID this in the 26th Psalm, crystallizing the hopes of everyone who is reaching for his bit of heaven. When you use the Maryknoll Missal these words become a part of your offering to Christ on the Feast of the Holy Family. This Daily Missal of the Mystical Body is the missal which can be used by every member of the family as they strive for the perfection attained by the Holy Family. Through the Maryknoll Daily Missal the spiritual life of the individual and the family is constantly nourished. It is by using this missal that we understand and more fully participate in the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass.

The Maryknoll Daily Missal is the missal that you have heard so many of your friends talking about... the missal that so many priests and nuns have been praising and recommending. This is the missal that brings greater hope, joy and meaning to you in the Mass... to those experienced in using the missal and to those who have never used one before.

Here's why:

- The Maryknoll Missal has a readable translation of the Mass. This alone recommends it.
- The Maryknoll Missal offers excellent learning aids through the many full-colored illustrations that are contained in it.
- The Maryknoll Missal contains biographical sketches of the saints and explanations of the liturgical seasons. It emphasizes ideas that can be understood and appreciated even by young people — ideas that can be readily applied by children and adults in their daily living.
- The Maryknoll Missal is reasonably priced. It is available in bindings from $3.95 to $18.50, yet even the least expensive one is sturdily bound with reinforced cloth to last a lifetime. You'll like the large type, too.
